LUKE FULLER | AVAILABLE WORK

Luke Fuller graduated in Ceramics & Glass from the Royal College of Art in 2020, being awarded the Charlotte Fraser Scholarship for outstanding work. Since completing his BA in 3D Design & Craft at the University of Brighton in 2018, he has won several prestigious prizes and bursaries, including New Designer of the Year at the Business Design Centre, 2018; and the Nagoya University of Art, Grand Prize, 2018. Fuller has shown work internationally at various exhibitions including ‘The Power of Material: From Virtual to Physical’, The Design Museum, London, UK; FOG Design+Art in San Francisco, US; PAD London, UK; British Ceramics Biennial, UK. His work features in notable private and public collections, including the Victoria & Albert Museum, UK.
Fuller ’s practice engages with our natural and industrial landscapes in order to question our current existence and understanding. His interest stems from his family connections in South Wales, where for generations his forbearers worked in the Steel and Coal Mining industries, specifically Port Talbot, where the Steel Works collide with the sea on one side and mountains on the other. First-hand encounters with this landscape and industrial setting have created a strong sense of place in his practice, fuelling his fascination with abstraction, construction and disruption of form. Using clay as a vehicle, he expresses his perceptions of landscape and the ambiguous relationship between humans and the natural environment. The sculptures that are forged are records of Fuller‘s experience with clay and are examples of the immediacy the material offers. He manifests his thoughts and concerns through processes of construction and the physicality of making.
